It's that time of year again when the A-List of Austin Startups gets released.

The Greater Austin Chamber of Commerce and South by Southwest Interactive announced the 2013 Austin A-List this week.

They compiled the list based on input from local investors.

This year's list includes 19 startups spanning a wide range of industries.

The companies include Adometry, AeonClad Coatings, Caisson Biotech, Digby, Famigo, Gravitant, Invodo, Kimbia, Localeur, MapMyFitness, Mass Relevance, NOOM, Ortho Kinematics, RetailMeNot, Spiceworks, SpredFast, Tango Health, Televero and Terapio.

"The A-List has proven a successful tool with past A-List winners receiving a combined $57.7 million in investment since the October 2012 announcement. A few of these notable successes include BlackLocus' acquisition by Home Depot as its innovation lab, and Toopher's $2 million capital raise," according to the Chamber.

The Chamber and SXSW Interactive revealed the list, now in its third year, at an event Thursday at Fogo de Chao.
